Brown to become prime minister

Gordon Brown is set to become prime minister, bringing to an end Tony Blair's 10 years in power.

Mr Brown is expected to begin his reshuffle on Wednesday

Mr Blair will see the Queen and leave office after his final prime minister's questions session in the Commons and saying farewell to Downing St staff.

Mr Brown is then expected to travel to meet the Queen, who will formally offer him the role in the early afternoon.

Mr Brown is expected to begin his Cabinet reshuffle by naming the next chancellor and home secretary.

Priorities

Trade and Industry Secretary Alistair Darling, a close ally of Mr Brown, is widely tipped to become chancellor.

John Reid has also said he will step down as home secretary, leaving another Cabinet seat empty.

A fuller reshuffle of government jobs is expected on Thursday.

Mr Brown, who has been chancellor since Mr Blair became
